THE ASSIGNMENT

Letter From Our CEO

Dear Valued Subscribers,

I extend my heartfelt gratitude for your trust and interest in the District Credit Union. Your engagement, whether as members or potential members, is invaluable to our journey and success. We're committed to enhancing your experience with us, continuously improving our digital banking services to make your financial management seamless, whether online, via our mobile app, or in-person.

Our dedication extends beyond banking services; we're passionate about providing financial education and resources. From budgeting workshops to personalized consultations, our goal is to empower you with the knowledge and tools for a prosperous financial future.

Looking forward, we're excited about expanding our services and innovating to better serve your needs. Your feedback is crucial in this endeavor, helping us shape a future that meets your expectations and strengthens our community.

We stand firm in our values of mutual respect, integrity, and trust, and I'm grateful for your support and loyalty. Together, we look forward to a bright future, continuing to achieve remarkable milestones for all our subscribers.

Warmest regards,

Steve G. Bouras
CEO

Are Teens Prepared for Financial Independence?

Shocking Stats Reveal a Need for Change

Wakefield Research Reports:

- 54% of teens feel unprepared to finance their future
- 69% of teens say that rising education costs have affected their plans for additional education after high school

The National Financial Educators Council (NFEC) Reports:

- Lack of financial literacy costs Americans an average of $1,819 annually

Every year in April, National Financial Literacy month aims to promote the significance of financial education, particularly for young individuals. As credit card debt in the U.S. reaches a staggering $1.13 trillion, there is growing recognition for need of financial literacy among our youth. A strong foundation of personal finance is essential for succeeding in adulthood, as financial instability and worry afflict mental and physical well-being.

Unfortunately, only twenty-five U.S. states require a financial literacy course as a prerequisite for high school graduation. As our members are aware, financial education and banking are closely connected. That is why our credit union has made it a mission to educate the talented students of Aurora Public Schools and Cherry Creek Public Schools.

The skills and knowledge in personal finance acquired through these courses are valuable at every phase of life and major milestone. To support this goal, TDCU collaborates with educators in these school districts to offer free financial literacy lessons and workshops to students, parents, teachers, and staff within the Aurora community.
